BUSINESS NEWS & LEADERSHIP ARTICLES

Lead from the Future

There is present-forward vision, and there is future-back vision. There is a difference. Present-forward thinking will get you incremental change and often leaves you stuck in the present. Future-back thinking expands your horizon to see opportunities that are beyond your core business. Future-back helps you quiet the noise today to see the faint signals that could disrupt your business or activities tomorrow.

Leadership lessons from Capt. James T. Kirk

No cadet had ever “survived” the Kobayashi Maru until James T. Kirk arrived at Starfleet Academy. He was given the same two terrible choices and told he must pick one. Yet both his ship and crew came through intact. So how did this Kirk guy do it? Well when presented with two horrible options he declined to pick either one. He manufactured a third.
